Fire Guts Scout House

Tuesday night the hottest drum in town burned down the Girl Scout house.

A roaring, malevolent fire which completely gutted the interior of the old structure at Lincoln and Sixth was apparently born when a bongo drum standing alongside a floor furnace in the west end of the auditorium toppled — or was knocked over — onto the furnace grate.

That is how it began. But the innocent trigger probably was the thermostat, set for seventy degrees. In the quiet of the deserted building, somewhere near eight o'clock in the evening, as the fresh, cool winds blew down the temperature, it clicked a deadly signal to the furnace. The soft, popping response released a gentle flame, which quickly roasted its way into an ugly tragedy.

For perhaps five hours the wicked fire crept stealthily and unnoticed, broiling up a fierce heat which the old stuccoed-over board and bat building finally found unendurable.

At about 1:30 a.m., it blew its top, burst its windows, and disgorged its broiling burden of flame through the roof, out the doors and from every shattered window.

The Alarm

David Burd, a criminalist from the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Identification, was staying at the Pine Inn, across the street. He had been lecturing at Monterey Peninsula College to volunteer firemen, including many from Carmel, on physical evidence in arson and fire investigation.

He was asleep when he heard the crash of shattering glass. "Some crazy drunk dropped a bottle," he thought.

Then another crazy drunk dropped another bottle, and abruptly Burd awakened to confront the blazing visage across the street from his hotel window.

He phoned the desk. "There's a hell of a fire across the street!" he shouted, and thought silently to himself, "Is this Carmel's idea of a classroom demonstration?"

At Lincoln and Seventh, Police Officer Walter Boyle was walking his door shaking beat. He smelled smoke, saw the weaving orange glare in the sky, and called the Police Station. Police Officer Bob Fischer was driving up Ocean Avenue after a patrol of the beach. The radio crackled with a call, and Fischer sped to the scene with the lurid beacon to guide him. His call-back was urgent: this was what the fire lads call a "working fire." It was, in fact, a holocaust.

In the fire house, Paul Artellan had relieved Jim Cardwell at 9:00 p.m. They talked of routine things. Paul mused, "I guess we're due for a big working fire soon. It's been too quiet."

In a little more than four hours, he had it.

Training was now to pay off. Two calls came in simultaneously, from the Pine Inn desk and from the Police Station. Paul hit the shiny brass pole, was on the station floor at once, threw the automatic phone alarm to the homes of distant volunteers, and wrenched open the station doors.

The great siren atop the station house shrieked out its cry. Half of Carmel stirred anxiously in their beds, alarmed, disturbed. Wondering where? Who? How bad? What danger is this in the still and dark night?

The Battle

The brand new $30,000 American La France was first out of the house, with Artellan at the wheel, quickly followed by Lee McGuckin, who wrenched the bulk of the glorious old, but recently rebuilt, Mack onto the street. Maurice Grimshaw flashed the GMC immediately behind, the ambulance followed at once, and Carmel had thrust its full resources into the battle with mankind's most ancient, primordial enemy: fire.

With scheduled deliberation the department's resources were deployed. There was no confused or frantic scrambling. The La France went to the immediate scene, the Mack to Ocean and Lincoln and the GMC to Monte Verde and Sixth, where it stood by to combat any leap of the fire to the adjacent Pine Inn.

"You can thank Carmel for the La France," the department authorities said that night of the recently-acquired equipment. As instantly as it arrived, four lines were out and on the rampaging blaze.

The Mack's lines came quickly into support. Over 25 instantly-responding volunteers swarmed over the conflagration with hoses, ladders, axes, masks and furious determination. It was an observable fact, that within ten minutes of arrival they had contained the fire; within twenty minutes, they had nearly quenched it.

The Pine Inn had, from the beginning, been under sustained threat, a horror to contemplate for the furiously-engaged firemen. The flames, at first, stretched hungrily across the street towards the famous hotel. Had the wind, which earlier whipped in antic glee through the town, still been blowing, a major conflagration might have occurred. As it was,

WHITAKER OUT; SPENCER IS IN

A complex, contradictory and stubborn blacksmith crossed the California border into Nevada last Monday, and thereafter solemnly noted the fact and the time of the fact in a letter addressed to the City Council which was received yesterday. The time he noted was 6:35 p.m.

It was the conclusion of this blacksmith, Francis Whitaker, that he had thereby and at that time relinquished his post on the Council, which he has held for the last three and one-half years.

Perhaps he had. But not by the dramatic gesture of crossing a state border. He relinquished it by leaving Carmel on the previous Saturday, with a stated intent to take up residence elsewhere. It so happens that he is destined to become a resident of Aspen, Colorado, where he will continue to pursue his art of smithing, a field in which he excells.

Whitaker never did resign. He

The old man plowed his furrow straight, despite his age of eighty-eight; his back erect, his eyes full keen as any man I've ever seen.

"Old man," I said, "stop, take a rest, and tell me what you must know best — to grow in grace as old as you, what frugal plan must I pursue?"

The patriarch never stayed his stride, but spoke in ringing voice of pride, "Do nothing to excess," he said, "and when in trouble, keep your head.

Drink all you want, eat what you can, but most of all is this, young man: Before you choose what's best or worst, be sure to pick your parents, first."

Sunset School—A Symbol And An Opportunity For Carmel

PART III

By LARRY ROSE

We proposed last week that Sunset School should become a center of the seven arts, or an arts and sciences center; and we proposed further that the city should participate only as a paternal and not as a proprietary agency. We also stated our fervent belief that such a use, imaginatively developed, would create a renaissance in Carmel which would be cultural, social and economic in its extent.

We believe this, although we are not so sure that today Carmel possesses the energy, imagination or — most important — the common purpose to bring it off. Nonetheless, it represents such an urgent matter (I wish that somehow the command of that adjective could be made stronger) that it must be attempted.

The Theater Inspiration

When Sir Tyrone Guthrie was here last year to advise on the possibilities of a festival theater for the presentation of a repertory of Shakespeare, many sites were considered. Though none of them were in Carmel, if a repertory theater of the magnitude urged by Sir Tyrone were to be built anywhere on the Peninsula, Carmel would experience the effect as Carmel has increasingly felt the effect of so much else going on about us: vicariously.

People who came to attend the theater would still come to Carmel, but, quite frankly, to gawk. To move among us and stare. To snap photos. To consume us, in a word, but contribute nothing much. Except money. And not very much of that, considering the frightful price that we would pay in the vitality sucked out of us, and the loss of integrity.

But, if the play, if the concert or recital, if the seminar, workshop, exhibit or lecture were in Carmel itself, we would become the inspirational ingredient, rather than the sideshow diversion which seems to be our shabby lot at present. We would, so to speak, become the reputable laboratory of cultural and social inquiry, the apparatus for lively and worthwhile experimentation, observation and innovation, absorbing as much of the worthwhile as we would contribute.

The Bach Example

The people who attend the Bach Festival are a brilliant example of what we might expect. A warmth, a sincere and elevated purpose inspires them. Furthermore, they are substantial contributors to our economy. They come for extended periods. They are able to afford substantial expenditures in all segments of our economy. They do not just dribble ice cream cones all over the place and motor out of town on Sunday afternoon in an acrid smog of exhaust fumes, wondering what do people do around this place, huh?

And so, the baroque music of Bach and the baroque theater of Shakespeare immediately suggest themselves as the two premier "anchors" of a cultural center, attracting people who, by their nature, their inclination and their means, would warm to Carmel, would enjoy it with sympathy, and would stir and excite all of us with the stimulation of contact and inspiration that world-wide cultural commerce would provide.

And don't think that much of these United States isn't searching for some place that represents culture in a word, as Williamsburg represents the Colonial idea; as Hollywood (to be ridiculous as well as unrealistic) represents the glamorous nonsense of motion pictures; as Pittsburgh represents steel; as Bayreuth represents Wagner—and as Carmel presently represents quaintness in the tourist's vernacular.

Continuous Operation

A center so focused should be in perpetual — though not necessarily exhalted — operation. It might contain an auditorium of about the proportions of the present hall (but one not suffering from the present annoying inadequacies of poor accoustics, frightful lighting and painfully uncomfortable seating) for concerts, major lectures and conferences. The hall is not beyond effective remodeling. A prominent architect has given this assurance. He is a person of the imagination and ability to design it.

Supplementing this function, the present classrooms could be designated for small lectures, recitals, conferences, exhibits and studios. Reminiscent of the old Carnegie Hall in New York, the prospect of a bank of studios which painters, musicians, sculptors and photographers could rent would be not only artistically attractive, it would provide sound economic support of the operation.

But the perpetual fulcrum of this complex should be a library, a student library as well as a custodian of what undoubtedly would become a vast art treasure of not only literature but painting, sculpture, music and photography.

This library activity, together with the individual studios, would give the center a continuity of purpose and activity unparalleled elsewhere, assuring that its function would not eventually deteriorate into that of some ornamental but essentially useless grand ballroom or dusty convention hall.

Furthermore, the exposure of students to the broadest artistic environment while on their way to examine the curiosities of somebody named Macaulay, Thackeray or Ibsen, might not work any profound mischief. As a matter of fact, a stroll through these corridors would become a damned good tactical walk for almost anybody.

Finally, Carmel would probably not suffer any material or spiritual damage if such a center attracted small, earnest conferences and seminars, such as occur at Asilomar. We already have one or two annual medical conferences of high reputation, and it is known that these groups appreciate the reserved, objective reception they receive here, which creates an atmosphere inviting sincere work.

As to Economics

Now, as to economics. A baroque theater used twice a year for a Bach Festival and a Shakespearean Festival could produce a gross revenue exceeding $1,500,000. This is not wild fancy. The Stratford, Connecticut, festival produces something approximating $900,000 Stratford, Ontario does even better. They do it by producing the very finest that the appreciative world can experience. Carmel should assay it only if it intends to do at least as much. And anything less would be unbecoming to Carmel.

In the last analysis, we are proposing nothing less — absolutely nothing less — than a multi-million dollar operation which would create and present a concentration of the most sublime cultural and artistic activities in a sensitive and sympathetic environment. It isn't being done any place else in the world, not to this comprehensive extent. It should be done here; Carmel needs it. And, hopefully, Carmel still is needed by the world. People 50 years ago, with their own simple preception, believed this. And so should we, with 50 years' experience to convince us.

Now, as to the means. We are discussing the acquisition of a property worth at least a half-million dollars; perhaps more. We are also talking about putting another $500,000 into it. We are not, therefore, talking about peanuts. But we are discussing something which is of the magnitude and aspiration that should attract strong foundation support, perhaps from the Rockefeller people, or the Ford Foundation. To interest them, we have to have a local foundation, or organization, with the demonstrated capacity, reputation and imagination to do this. I think that the local chapter of the American Federation of Arts might represent such a group, and they have been thinking along similar lines for some time. Furthermore, their membership is composed of people with the requisite imagination and capacity to manage such an enterprise, a thing which has to be much bigger than anything we are accustomed to envisioning. An independent foundation is not to be disregarded, however.

Finally, I think that the City should be the agency to take title to the property; to lease it to the local foundation, which would pay a rational rental so that the city would not be suffering economic deprivation; and, in that connection, the City should stay the heck out of the way thereafter.

Don't be a dishwasher, buy one!

Why soak, scour and scrub a stack of dirty dishes three times a day? Just whisk them into an automatic dishwasher and let it do the work. Dishes will come out sparkling clean, washed in water hotter than your hands can stand. And you'll save more than four hours of dish drudgery a week!

Don't be a dishdryer, buy one!

No two ways about it, men: A soggy dishtowel is a sorry substitute for the sports page. But there's a way out: Just buy an automatic dishwasher. Not only washes dishes—it dries em', too (and never, never drops one!). Interested? The man to see is your Reddy Recommended Appliance Dealer.

Foreign Visitors

Fourteen administrative specialists in art, history and science museums of 14 foreign countries will arrive on Wednesday at Asilomar to begin a brief visit to the Monterey Peninsula. They are part of a U.S. Department of State cultural exchange program, an annual tour of American museums for foreign museum professionals, and will be accompanied by Frank Hammond, assistant to the director of the American Association of Museums, Washington, D.C. Their local host is the World Affairs Council of the Monterey Peninsula, Professor Carl Hering, president; and the itinerary of sightseeing, visits to Peninsula museums, and entertainment in homes is in charge of Mrs. Margaret Stebbins, chairman of the Council's international visitors committee. Local Girl Scouts who have attained the rank of international aides will assist in the reception.

After visiting Washington, D.C., San Diego, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Santa Barbara, San Simeon and the Monterey Peninsula, on 10 May the visitors will arrive in San Francisco for a 10-day seminar on museum educational methods and techniques, under the direction of George D. Culler, director of the San Francisco Museum of Art. They will then attend the 58th annual meeting of the American Association of Museums in Seattle.

The local itinerary begins Thursday morning when the visitors will be shown through the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History by Vernal Yadon, curator; then driven along the 17-Mile Drive to Carmel and to the Carmel Art Association gallery where they will talk with John Halloran. At 12:30 they will be guests of the World Affairs Council at lunch, after which they will view the adobes and museums on Monterey's Path of History. At 3 p.m. they will be received by Mrs. Mayo Hayes O'Donnell at Casa Soberanes, and at 4 p.m., Mrs. Pauline McCleary, curator, will receive the group at Colton Hall.

Countries represented by the visiting museum officials are England, Belgium, West Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, Poland, India, Pakistan, U.S.S.R., New Zealand, Ethiopa, Nigeria, Southern Rhodesia, and Peru.

Sports Cars

BY ED LESLIE

EVER WONDER WHAT IS GOING ON AT LAGUNA SECA? Let me ramble on a bit and see what I can clear up.

The track, out there on Ft. Ord's maneuvers area, belongs to the Army. Sure, we raised $90,000 to build it, but the lease could be cancelled tonight. The bridge installed to get you inside during the races, plus all the improvements we've made there, went to the government when we renewed the lease. So-o, we don't have any equity. But, we do put on two race weekends per year, and that allows 18 club-operated booths to make money for their charities. The Junior Chamber of Commerce sells tickets, the Kiwanis parks cars, the motels rent beds, the restaurants sell food and the dollars float around to help you. The Army gets a good percentage of the total receipts, for childrens' activities, Scouts, Little League, etc. Many reasons are there for the SCRAMP effort in putting on the races.

Now, you don't just take Bob Sherry away from KIDD and Jim Plummer out of Toytown and run a race. It takes hundreds of people and many hours of preparation to get it done. In short, it takes the Sports Car Club of America and their organization, sanctions, rules, contestants, and their satellite group called United States Auto Racing Marshals (USARM) to do it.

SCRAMP — that's us'ns — have agreed to work with SCCA for five more years. We are having a big race 7, 8 and 9 June. The Friday and Saturday event is a full regional race of SCCA with the added attraction of a big Sunday National Road Racing Championship event.

In addition, there is a nationwide year-long contest for GT (coupelike) cars for a Constructors Championship. For this supremacy the Stingrays, Ferrari GT-Os, Jag coupes, Cobras, etc., have been competing at Sebring, Daytona, and Pensacola. We offer a 150-mile race for them on Sunday. In addition, there will be another 150-miler for the U.S. Drivers Championship in modified sports cars. We are offering a $5,000 purse on this one, and you'll see every big name driver in the country, and the fastest cars in the world. Only types like Moss, Brabham, Hill, Gurney, internationally rated drivers, cannot compete. This will be the best race ever held or witnessed at Laguna!

Our big June race is preceded by the regional events held at Stockton (that's over), Cotati, Reno, Oakland, Vacaville and Candlestick Park, all scheduled now. SoCal races at Riverside, Pomona, Del Mar and Santa Barbara, have preluded our race.

In October we go for the internationally-approved Pacific Grand Prix (like last year), where we have a one-day regional event for amateurs, and two days of FIA $20,000 Grand Prix sports car racing, with the finest drivers in the U.S. and the world appearing. The date is set for 18, 19 and 20 October. There is a big mess with the New York FIA committee that must sanction this race, even though they have given us the date and we have had it for years.

SCRAMP decided not to spend its $12,000 with the SF Examiner to publicize the race this year, and rescinded its contract with them on grounds that they had violated the contract by calling the race the "Examiner Grand Prix." Not being anxious to lose their connection with Lagune Seca, the Examiner filed an application in New York to move our race to Vacaville and run it with the United States Auto Club, rather than SCCA.

Suddenly our okay to hold the race was suspended, and indecision has reigned. Even now, they have not issued our contract in spite of a letter indicating their intention to do so.

The power of the press is considerable, and a large group of papers can and do accomplish things. We are arguing and hoping, but cannot yet be sure of the FIA approval by ACCUS. SCRAMP and the SCCA have affirmed their intention to hold the race at Laguna as scheduled, and it will be held, but we cannot be sure of the international bit until the Examiner issue is settled.

Of course, our securing of international drivers is done in conjunction with the Seattle track (Kent's Pacific Raceways), and Riverside's L.A. Times Grand Prix, the races held just before ours. We are angry and disappointed to be held up and are doing every possible thing to clear the air for Laguna Seca as soon as possible.

There is an interesting sidelight to all this, and SCRAMP is trying to clear it up. When people come to the Peninsula, they are often surprised at high motel and food prices. This, coupled with information from sources antagonistic to SCRAMP and the local races, leads some well-read news sources to paint a bad picture for their readers.

We have not published enough of the good side of our races— the charity aspects, the good will of the local people who make the effort to bring the Peninsula the business, and the civic groups who also toil to make the races successful. SCRAMP, beginning an active campaign to correct this unfavorable image, will use the race-oriented firm of Finefrock and Co., of San Francisco, to publicize the race and the great good that the race monies accomplish.

I feel this effort could be started locally by you, and the things you can do and say when traveling, or when talking with visitors to the Peninsula.

Make sure they know the good the races do. Make sure they know the benefits to charity and youth activities.

Make sure we can continue to have the finest of all races here at Laguna Seca.

OVERWHELMED BY DENSE AND ACRID SMOKE, Firemen Eric Jensen (rear, without mask) and James Cardwell emerge from anxious search for occupants of the flaming building. Note the rope lashing the two men together, in case of injury to one or the other FIREMEN RUSH THROUGH FRONT DOOR of the Scout House. By this time the onrush of the flames had been blunted and quick submission was being accomplished. All furniture, equipment and special properties were destroyed. This door was at first completely blocked by flames, as were all other potential exits at the time the firemen arrived.

EMERGENCY RESUSCITATION is administered to fireman James Cardwell by Paul Artellan, right, after Cardwell was overcome by smoke while searching the building for possible occupants. None were found. Besides Eric Jensen, Jim Bannerman also suffered from smoke inhalation, but no other injuries, besides some slight burns, were reported.

Fire Story

the fire dropped sparks in angry frustration on an awning of the hotel, and long after it had been conquered at the Scout House, it sprang up briefly across the street, where firemen pursued it and quickly quenched its stubborn mischief.

The "Ifs"

"What if . . ." spectators anxiously brooded as they stood and watched the exacting battle of men and water against flames. The incompletely formed but gloomy specter that stalked them was of the young girls who might have been inside. For the Scout House had long been a scene of activity, containing at times 30 or 40 girls attending meetings. At other times, at night time on weekends, the House had been regularly occupied for "overnigats," when scouts would spend the night, sleeping on the now-ravaged floors in sleeping bags, cooking meals, and otherwise simulating "camp-outs." It had been one of the few Girl Scout houses in the state so used.

Had fire drills been regularly conducted?

"Well," said Mrs. Harold Aldrich, "all of the adults who guided the girls were fully informed on procedures, and the place was amply supplied with exits, and the girls as scouts are supposed to know what to do in emergencies."

But no one was sure that drills had been regularly held, or held at all. And panic is an epidemic disorganizer.

Last week, the Pine Cone accomplished a macabre "scoop." The paper published, as if it were a premature obituary, the story of the early history of the building. The article told of its construction prior to 1905; of its use as Carmel's first library; its removal in about 1922 to the present site; and its eventual transformation in 1928 to a Girl Scout house.

The building was insured, perhaps "adequately." But furniture, personal items and treasure beyond value was lost. "It hurts," remarked Mrs. Lee Chamberlain of district Girl Scout headquarters.

It might have hurt a lot more.

SPENCER IN

simply departed, concluding that this act automatically deprived him of his seat, leaving "nothing from which I can resign."

Thus ended a cat-and-mouse game which made good newspaper copy but not much sense.

Today, the City Council will meet at 4:30 p.m. to select a successor. They will appoint Mr. Robert Spencer, whom they had selected some time ago in anticipation of Whitaker's eventually vacating his seat.

The election of a vice-mayor and reorganization of Council committees will take place at the regular meeting, 8 May.

VOLUNTEER FIREMAN WILLIAM ASKEW plays fog nozzle through window of the west end of structure, in the area where fire commenced, while other members of the department stand below attending lines.

A BAPTISM OF FIRE for the new $30,000 American La France engine was provided by the conflagration. The truck was on the front line, and its tremendous capacity proved a major factor in permitting quick control of the dangerous fire.

BASEBALL

Batter Up!

Little League flag-raising day and the official league opening ceremony will take place Saturday at 12:30 in the ball park adjoining Mission San Carlos Basilica, under the guiding hand of Dr. Charles Pearson.

Following the first game between Carmel Sports Shop and Boystown at 11:00 a.m., the Carmel American Legion will present a new 50-star flag to fly throughout the season.

The second contest pits Wilder & Jones against Pilot Market, with the squads sponsored by Turner-McEldowney and P. A. Mac finishing up the day.

Opening day in the majors is a nervous deal for even the most seasoned old timers, so come as you are and keep critical thoughts and opinions to yourselves until all of the clubs get off to a running start and begin to show their midseason form.

Errors shouldn't really count on opening day anyhow. Only hits. If any.

Money Magnet

The San Francisco Giants baseball team added $17,000,000 to the economy of San Francisco last year, according to an estimate by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

A total of 1,802,000 patrons, about half of them from out of the city, attended local Giant games including the playoff and the World Series.

As champions of the National League, the Giants are expected to be an even greater drawing card this year.

Conditions this year look better than at any time since '83. Reservations are being taken now for the Tassajara Big Fish Contest on May 4th. If you don't really fancy yourself waiting on the end of a line for a handout — come up and have a tussle with one of the "uncatchables"

FOOTBALL

Pappas Picked

Monterey Peninsula College has named Chris Pappas, of San Jose High School, assistant football coach and head baseball coach.

The 31-year-old former San Jose State College quarterback will assume his new duties 1 July.

Pappas served as an assistant coach under Bob Berry of Willow Glen High School for two years before moving to San Jose High School where he has served as head football and baseball coach since 1959.

Married and the father of five children, Pappas attended San Jose State College for both his bachelor's and master's degrees. While at San Jose State, he played both football and baseball.

He will replace Luther Phillips, who earlier this year was appointed MPC's head football coach when George Porter went to Washington State College at Pullman, Wash. Pappas is expected to take Phillips' old assignment as backfield coach for the Lobos.

Dig These Divots

By Jack Morris

Martin Mitchell, a pro unfrocked due to paying more attention to selling real estate than the golfing profession, violently disagrees with our theory that left-handers are at a disadvantage on the golf course and in the boxing ring.

We pointedly remarked that there are (or were), very few ring champions who stood southpaw, and until Bob Charles' golfing victory at Houston, left-handers had nothing — but nothing — in the golf business.

This was a terrible trial to Mr. Mitchell, who insists that a golf ball can be hit straight to a target by either a right-hander of a left-hander. This cannot be true, as anyone with some understanding of physics can imagine.

Think of the different throws from right field or left field. And why does a baseball manager station a right-hander in one field and a left-hander in the other?

Perhaps Mitchell's trouble is that he is a big man with a short, fat thumb and cannot fade a ball.

CRICKET

Unstuck Wicket

The Del Monte Cricket Club, in their first match of the season, last Sunday were soundly defeated by a side from Stanford led by Clive Severn who starred for his club with 37 runs and not out. Stanford scored 57 runs without losing a wicket, so it is back to the drawing board for our side.

Clive Hodgson was leading batsman for Del Monte with 16 runs, which is about like Willie Mays going one-for-four.

The play of the side from Stanford was a disturbing shock to the locals who expected to compete against the average pickup team. But the team was made up of widely-experienced players from the British Commonwealth, and for this time, just too good. More practice in all departments for Del Monte and next time we shall see.

A practice is scheduled for next Sunday on the green at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Del Monte Forest according to Stafford Hook, our cricket correspondent.

DOGS

Beside the Green

The 38th annual All-Breed Dog Show and Obedience Trials will take place 26 May alongside the eighteenth green at Pebble Beach.

This is probably the finest one-day show in the entire country, with fourteen rings used to speed up the action, and outstanding judges coming from such widely separated spots as New York and Hawaii.

A non-profit affair benefiting Monterey Peninsula Pets, Inc., this time, premium lists will be out in a few days and may be obtained from the show superintendent, Bernice Behrendt, 470 Thirty-eighth Avenue, San Francisco, or at local veterinarians and pet shops.

"An Introduction to Medicine," a seminar including demonstrations in pathology, bacteriology, X-ray, diagnosis and therapy, surgical and nursing techniques and care of the newborn, is currently being held at Community Hospital for 60 high school and junior high school students of the Monterey Peninsula.

Participating from Carmel High School are Tom Poulos, Mike Aldinger and Steve Johnson; from Carmel Junior High School, Marian Reed, Karen Adams and Shelley Rayne.

Community Hospital is cooperating in the project, under the auspices of the Association for Gifted Students, in observance of National Hospital Week, which gravitates around the axis of Florence Nightingale's birthday, 12 May.

Administrator Thomas E. Tonkin welcomes the interest of the students, not without an eye to the future. Careers in the hospital field are many, he has observed. There are over 200 different job classifications into which the more than 1,500,000 hospital workers fit, two and a half for each patient, nearly seven for each physician.

The faculty of the "school," which has operated in two-hour sessions each Friday night, concluding tomorrow night, are Dr. Talcott Bates, Dr. William Wenner, Dr. Robert L. Black, Dr. Osman Hull, Dr. Ben Dahle and Dr. Wesley Fielding. Assisting are Miss Elizabeth Kynaston, R.N., director of nursing, and Mrs. Kay Kenney, R.N., nurse supervisor of obstetrics.

El Yanqui Scores

El Yanqui, Monterey Peninsula College student newspaper, has won the Columbia Scholastic Press Association medalist award for the second year running, Rod Holmgren, MPC journalism department chairman, has announced.

The award certificate, with an official scorebook giving El Yanqui 946 points out of a possible 1,000, was received at the college last week with the written comment from the judges: "Yours is an extremely colorful and interesting paper."

Junior college papers from throughout the country are judged on content, writing and editing, makeup and "general considerations" in the Columbia University contest, according to Holmgren. Less than 10 percent of first-place winners are selected for the top medalist rank.

El Yanqui won its first medalist award in 1962 for 1961 editions.

Learning Disabilities

Children with learning disabilities will be discussed at a one-day conference Saturday at Salinas High School.

Emphasis will be placed on the emotionally handicapped, brain-damaged and hyperactive students. The meeting is open to the general public as well as to doctors, teachers and nurses.

Keynote speaker will be Peter Cohen, M.D., associate professor of pediatrics, University of California Medical Center, San Francisco. As part of his duties at the medical center, Dr. Cohen is in charge of clinics for the neurologically handicapped and the mentally retarded.

Representatives from San Mateo County will describe the program for neurologically handicapped children which they have been conducting for the past three years.

The conference is being sponsored jointly by the Monterey County Office of Education, Health Department, Medical Society, 20th District PTA and the California Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

CARMEL VALLEY

MEMOIRS OF JOE HITCHCOCK

By Marion Crush

The father of the surviving members of the Costanoan Indians in Carmel Valley was Manuel Onesemo. There were 14 children at one time. Manuel was called Panocha by his friends. Roy Meadows of Carmel Valley used to tell the story of Panocha, which went something like this:

Before Berthold was born, Panocha was pleasuring himself with a small sip in a Monterey bistro. Being very happy, he launched himself into a lively dance. The observers, a Mr. Field and George Berthold, commented on the state of his shoes. (His toes were sticking out.)

Mr. Field said, "George, give Panocha a pair of the best shoes you have in the store." And Mr. Berthold did.

When Panocha's new baby was born, he named him after his friend, Mr. Berthold, who gave him the shoes. That man was a German shoe merchant. He is the same one who donated to the city of Monterey the sum of $10,000 to be used for a park at Colton Hall.

The great-great grandfather of Johnnie, Berthold, and Alex was named Juan by the padres. In story and legend old Juan worked on the Mission buildings under the direction of Fr. Junipero Serra. With seven other young Indians he helped bring the cypress beam used in the original chapel of San Carlos. He also carried rocks on his back in thongs from a place on the present Stuyvesant Fish ranch, in the mouth of Carmel Valley. He helped to carve a colored wooden statue of the Holy Mother for the Mission Chapel. He also made shoes by hand and played a violin given to him by one of the padres.

All, or almost all, of the early historians agreed that the Californians were a friendly race—a contrast to the character of the Indians on the opposite coast of our country (almost as though the climate had something to do with it). The "hostiles" of the East coast witnessed the landing on the stern and rock-bound shore of the stormy Atlantic the solemn-visaged Puritans, men seeking to merit heaven by making earth a hell. While to the "delightful land of California," as some of the earliest discoverers termed it, came wanderers from Castile, seeking to make of this world a paradise, singing and dancing their happy lives away on the edge of the peaceful sea.

The missions were named after the saints by the padres. Our civilization dates back to 1770 when Fr. Serra brought Christianity to the savage Indians by establishing Mission San Carlos Borremeo. It was founded in Monterey at the same time as the Presidio. But in June, 1771, the Mission was moved to the banks of the Carmelo River to withdraw the neophytes from contamination by the soldiers, and to have available more usable soil for tilling.

The Indians soon came to the Mission, where pueblos developed. They were taught Christianity and were fed. In turn, they helped the padres build the Mission, raise crops and tend cattle. Many Indians came from the interior of the State to be baptized. It is said that at one time one thousand Indians were housed at San Carlos.

An early explorer who did much to help Mission San Carlos was La Perouse, who was sent by Louis XVI of France with an expedition to explore California and the remote parts of the world. La Perouse was in charge of 250 scientists of the then most polished court of Europe. According to his accounts, there were about 50,000 wandering Indians subjected to Mission control.

More about the Indians and how they lived in my next story.

From A Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

We can now report that National Library Week was a huge success, at least so far as meals were concerned. The Monday night dinner was well attended with good speakers and good food. At the end of the week the authors' luncheon was so well attended the organizers decided that next year it would be a served meal instead of smorgasbord. Too many people marching up and down for food. Fifteen authors of children's books were there, to the great delight of all the small readers who love their books. A happy time having been had by all, we gather up the odds and ends of bookmarks and signs and settle back to await another Library Week next year.

Speaking of weeks, this is National Coin Week, and in our reading room is a most interesting display of coins from all over the world. The display was arranged by a local collector. Don't miss seeing this one!

A new book, which should be of value in any community such as this one, is entitled The Secrets of Successful Retirement, and is by Gereon Zimmerman. After discussing many problems and phases of the retirement state, he ends the book with a Retirement Gazetteer. Carmel is not mentioned in the California section, but in a state as large as this one, all the lovely places to live cannot be included.

Elizabeth Burton, who wrote The Pageant of Elizabethan England, has a new one entitled The Pageant of Stuart England. Fascinating to read, and illustrated by many drawings, this is a book for the layman as well as for the student of English history. The pictures of instruments used in surgery and dentistry are enough to make anyone protest his great good health!

Going from Stuart to Tudor England, we have Lady Jane Grey, the Nine Days Queen, by Hester Chapman. Here is the story of that tragic girl who was Queen of England for nine days, and died by order of Queen Mary, when she was but 16 years of age.

A beautiful book on Chinese and Japanese painting is entitled The Way of the Brush, and is by Fritz van Briessen. The author spent many years studying the art of Japan, and his book was published simultaneously in both German and English. The illustrations are beautiful and the text technical and exact.

The kitchen, that heart of the home, is pictured in all its glory in Better Homes and Gardens Kitchen Ideas for 1963. Quantities of storage space, glamorous dining areas, all the latest appliances! It's enough to make you think your present kitchen is a direct inheritance from your pioneer ancestors.

A slather of new novels this week, including four yummy mysteries!

MUSIC

MPC Concert

The Monterey County Symphony Chamber Orchestra, and the Monterey Peninsula College Brass Choir, both under the direction of symphony conductor John Gosling, will present a concert on Sunday at 3 p.m. in the music hall on the MPC campus.

Three pieces by MPC student Jack Stock—"Revelation," "Tone" and "Praise Ye the Lord"—will be played by the brass choir. Also included on the program will be the "Mogen Music" of Paul Hindemith; Haydn's Symphony No. 103, and Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 23 with Camille Olaeta, local pianist, as soloist.

The concert will be presented in cooperation with Local 616, American Federation of Musicians, through a grant from the Recording Industries Trust Fund to "create a greater interest in live music performances." It will be open to the public without charge.

Music Festival

All the performing musical ensembles in the Carmel Unified School District will gather in the Carmel High School gymnasium on Thursday, 9 May, at 7:30 p.m. for the school's first spring music festival. The public is cordially invited.

Performing will be singers from Carmelo School, directed by Janet Seaman; an elementary honor orchestra from Tularcitos, Carmelo, River and Woods schools, directed by Sharon Jones; a primary and a junior chorus from Tularcitos School, directed by Gene Perrine; the Carmel Junior High School band, directed by Joseph Larson; a beginning and advanced choir from the junior high school, directed by William Purdy; the choir, general chorus, and band from Carmel High School, directed by John Farr.

The program, organized by the combined music departments of the Carmel schools, will conclude with a mass performance by all the choirs and instrumental groups.

"King David"

"King David," the monumental music drama by Honneger, will be presented by the Monterey County Symphony at its final concert of the season in Sunset Auditorium, 14 May, at 8:30 p.m.

Although considered by musicologists to be one of the great masterpieces of present times, "King David" also has the distinction of being highly popular with concert goers. The work, which was premiered in Paris in 1921, was such an immediate success that additional performances had to be scheduled to meet the demand. Although "King David" was composed in the modern idiom, it is so skillfully orchestrated that it has proved an overwhelming success with the most conservative audiences.

Based on a play by the French playwright, Rene Moraz, the music drama was originally scored for a small orchestra, later revised to its present immense form, including a full symphony orchestra, large chorus, four vocal soloists and a narrator. Participating with the Monterey County Symphony in the forthcoming performance will be Sylvia Davis and Norma Jean Hodges, sopranos; Karen Steinke, mezzo-soprano; James Hull, tenor; Sam Matar, narrator. The choral assignment will be handled jointly by the Hartnell-Community Chorus and the Monterey Peninsula College Chorus.

Tickets for the performance are now on sale at the Browse Around Shop in Carmel, or by calling MA 4-4125 for reservations. Because of the overwhelming demand for tickets, symphony officials suggest that concert goers make their reservations early.

Pianist at White Oaks

Chris Nance, pianist from the University of Southern California, will give a recital on Friday at the White Oaks Theatre, Carmel Valley, at 8:30 p.m.

Mr. Nance, who is studying for a concertmaster's degree at USC, has conducted a chamber orchestra of 30 players for the past three years, assisted in a production of Kurt Weil's "Down in the Valley," assisted in operatic productions at USC, and was musical director of White Oaks Theatre productions during the summer of 1962.

The program will include compositions by Bach, Haydn, Brahms, Stravinsky and Ernest Bloch.

POETRY

Barker At Ring's

Eric Barker, Big Sur poet, will give a reading at Ring's, 565 Abrego Street, Monterey, on Sunday, 12 May, at 2:30 p.m.

Mr. Barker, 1962 winner of the Shelley Memorial Award of the Poetry Society of America, is the author of several books of poetry, among them "Directions in the Sun," "In Easy Dark," and "A Ring of Willows." He was a two-time winner (1955 and 1957) of the Borestone Poetry Award, also winner of the Commonwealth Club of California Medal in 1961.

His work has appeared in six Borestone anthologies, as well as in Poetry, Atlantic Monthly, Harper's Magazine, Saturday Review, and other publications.

THE FAMILY

A Short Fairy Tale

By Naomi Beth Marcus, Age 8

(Transcribed from her handwrittten manuscript, by express permission of the author, and approved by her for circulation to specifically selected readers.)

* * * * *

Once there lived a young ever so beautiful girl with her ugly brother, her handsome father, and her plain-looking mother.

They were all very very very VERY poor. One day the beautiful girl was out walking and weeping. She looked up and coming toward her was a very ugly looking Prince. The girl was very much frightened, but she got up and he spoke to her. He said: "Beautiful maiden, your name, please?"

"Ellen," the beautiful girl replied.

"Thank you," said the Prince and rode off.

The girl was tempted to follow but her family might worry. She started home. When she told her story her parents were glad that he had only asked her name. Her brother was glad when she told him that the Prince was ugly.

That night the brother wakened, not being able to sleep, went out to where his sister had been and there he waited.

Pretty soon he heard horses hoofs and some whispering voices. He hid in the clump of bushes by the stump where he was sitting. Then he saw the Prince who was INDEED ugly. He was in a coach of safires with ruby headlights.

The Prince was saying to a lady that looked a bit like his mother, "This is the spot where I saw her."

Then the lady said, "What do you want done?"

The Prince answered, "I want them rich!"

When the ugly boy heard this; he ran out from where he was hiding and bowed. "I am very grateful."

When he said these words, to his own surprise, the lady screamed and ran to hide, the Prince vanished. The boy went right to the coach and started to help the lady who was now crying. When he had calmed her, he asked her name. Her name was Dianne. She was the good Fairy who ruled sun and moon, and the Prince had called her to come and cast a spell on the family to make them richer because they were so kind.

"Are we rich now?" he asked.

"Yes, now you are, but now I don't know how to get back to sun and moon, because I'm out of flying gas."

"You could come live with us, you know," said the boy, "if you do not mind a little ugliyniss."

And so the lady said, "If you mean YOU, you better look at yourself."

When the boy saw himself, he was INDEED handsome as his father.

"Oh, thank you," he said. "Would you come live with us?"

"Gladly," the lady replied.

And now they all live happily with three beutiful ladies, and three handsome men. (The beutiful girl got married.) The End.

Dolores Street To Be Improved

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of trustees last night it was decided to improve one block on Dolores Street, from Ocean Avenue to Seventh Street, and one block on Seventh Street between San Carlos and Dolores.

CARMEL ARTISTS ENJOY STUDIO TEA

At a charmingly appointed studio tea and informal reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Mays on Thursday afternoon about seventy of Carmel's art coterie were afforded an opportunity to bid bon voyage to Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Botke, who leave in another week for an extended sojourn in Europe.

The affair was in the nature of a housewarming, as the Mays have recently returned to Carmel after a year and a half in New York and Los Angeles, where Mr. Mays was again assistant mural decorator of the new Grauman theater.

Assisting towards the success of the afternoon were Mrs. E. L. Moore, mother of the hostess; Mrs. Herman Spoehr, Mrs. Belle Kluegel, Mrs. Y. F. Swain and Miss Elliott Boke.

Mr. Mays will have his studio at home in the stone house near Thirteenth on Dolores. He will be instructor in the summer school of the Arts and Crafts and private pupils have already begun their classes.

LITTLE FAIRIES DANCE IN GLADE ON MAY DAY

A charming group of fairies visited Miss Blanche Tolmie's outdoor school on May day and danced in the glade for friends of the school. The fairy king and queen were Kevin Wallace and Polly Mays, and the other dancers were Junior and Sylvia Flanner, Ginger and Winnifred Ratliff, Leone Maguire and Valentine Porter. After the May-pole dance the fairies enjoyed a dainty repast prepared for them by Miss Tolmie and Miss Logie.

Gene Byrnes And Reg'lar Fellers Now Incorporated

To promote the sale, circulation and popularity of Eugene Byrnes cartoons, caricatures, paintings, drawings, writings and books, the Gene Byrnes Co. of Carmel-by-the-Sea, has been incorporated. Eugene Byrnes, Pearl Byrnes and Argyll Campbell are the incorporators and directors.

"Reg'lar Fellers," Gene Byrnes' creation, are already very popular, each morning greeting thousands of newspaper readers throughout the United States and Canada.

NATIVE SONS

There are 576 registered voters in the two precincts of Carmel. Grant Towle has been doing some checking at the county seat in Salinas, and finds that only 169 of these are native-born Californians.

The last two showings of Douglas Fairbanks' wonderful screen version of "Robin Hood" take place tonight and tomorrow night at the Monterey Theater . . . Carmel's season of summer movies begins next week with shows on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

Johannes Brahms' birthday will be celebrated on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. at Nepenthe with a concert under the direction of Margaret Fabrizio. Featured on the program will be tenor Tommy Goleeke; pianist Margaret Mosca; violinist John Erickson; and cellist Helen Stross.

Kay Ortman, composer and teacher, will lead a three-day seminar, beginning tomorrow evening, at Big Sur Hot Springs Lodge. Included in the week-end event will be exercises involving sculpture, painting, writing and music with movement. Joe Adams, psychologist, of Palo Alto, will take part in the discussions.

Reservations are now being taken for a seminar and workshop in Big Sur, 8-14 June, conducted by Alan Watts and Jean Varda. On the opening week-end (8-9 June), sessions will be 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. at the Coast Gallery, with Alan Watts conducting. At 9:00 p.m., Jean Varda will hold sessions at Big Sur Hot Springs Lodge.

Participants in the workshop should bring a set of pastels, colored papers, and a tablet of drawing paper.

For further information and reservations, telephone Coast Gallery, Big Sur 2821, or the Hot Springs Lodge, Big Sur 2634.

Bennett Bradbury, marine painter of Big Sur, has recently completed the remodeling of his new Carmel Highlands Art Gallery, where a large collection of his works are on display daily (except Monday) from noon until five in the afternoon. Lee Faulkner is in charge of the gallery. Private classes in landscape and marine painting are held Tuesdays and Thursdays under the direction of Mr. Bradbury.

The following is an open letter which appeared in the April issue of Big Sur's monthly newspaper, the Big Sur Roundup, and was presented by the Board of Trustees of the Captain Cooper School District, Big Sur:

"The efforts of many people and many talents went into the making of the new Captain Cooper School and now one more mile is required. When the school was in the early stages, all the present and future wants and needs were planned for as far as possible—but as any budgeter knows, what is needed and wanted is not always covered by sufficient money in the bank. Therefore, the planners had to backtrack, cut here, trim there. Construction changes, fewer shelves, no kitchen facilities, different finishes, window changes — a dollar here, a dollar there — but when it came to leaving out the tile in the children's bathrooms, the planners felt this was not the place to cut. Leaving out the tile, putting in a substitute of just painting would only mean more expenses and difficulty later; so they said leave the tile in and we will take care of it within the community. The tiling was done by Everett Makowski, and it is a fine job.

"Now the Board of Trustees for the school must ask the community to help out so that the job can be paid for. The amount is $720. If you can help, mail your contributions to Captain Cooper School District, Big Sur. Thank you." Signed, Board of Trustees, LaVonn Curtis, clerk.

It was "plant exchange night" at the conclusion of the last regular monthly meeting of the Big Sur Grange. Members and guests came with arms full and boxes full of cuttings, rooted plants, bulbs, both common and rare, and everyone present took pleasure in sharing their special contributions, and sharing, too, helpful hints on planting and plant care.

Members and guests of the Grange were so generous in their contributions that there were many boxes full of cuttings and plants left over. This delighted those members of the community who have worked so unselfishly in all things concerning the Captain Cooper Elementary School, for all of these additional plants from "exchange night" were planted the following day on the new school grounds.

Recent visitors at Rogers' Three Acres, the enchanting home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rogers, were Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Rogers of New York City. It was the first time in 37 years that the brothers and their wives had all been together. For the New Yorkers, who live in a skyscraper apartment, the profusion of flowering vines and shrubs and brilliantly colored tulips that envelop the Rogers' home, the thrilling view down the length of the Big Sur Valley and the rugged Santa Lucias seen from the garden areas, was almost too much for them to believe true during their brief stay in the Sur country. Maxwell Rogers, an artist, and director of package design for Avon Products in New York, was on the West Coast to address a cosmeticians' convention in Pasadena. On their return to New York, the Rogers flew to San Francisco to spend the night before completing their trip home, but the charm and unsurpassed beauty of this country caused them to return that night to Carmel. They completed their homeward trip the following day.

Beauty consultant Lettie Graves, formerly of Watertown, New York, is in Big Sur for the spring and summer season with a complete line of Luzier Personalized Beauty Services. She can help you to learn the secrets of loveliness with these home beauty aids. For further information or an appointment, telephone Big Sur 2633.

Surrounded by representatives of virtually every branch of the military services, Lynne Adelle Ensley became the bride of Captain James Daniel Knipp (U.S.A.), in a 4:00 p.m. ceremony on 17 April, at the Naval Postgraduate School, read by Chaplain Hedges Capers.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Mary Jane Thayer of Carmel, and Colonel William T. Ensley (U.S.A.F.), and granddaughter of Mrs. Laura Hoffman, of Carmel, wore a gown of rich, white silk organza over taffeta, detailed with an imported French lace and pearl motif, appliqued on the fitted bodice and the front of the skirt and sweeping into a chapel train. Her elbow length veil of English silk illusion flowed from a crown of re-embroidered lace with pearl and crystal trim. Lynne carried a cascade of white roses and stephanotis.

Attending her were Mrs. John Clatworthy, matron of honor, and Miss Catherine Dancy, maid of honor. They complimented the bride in street-length dresses of petal pink taffeta, cap-sleeved and scoop-necked. Their bell-shaped skirts were fashioned with rose detail at the center back, and their headdresses were of pink veiling attached to pearl and crystal crowns. Cascades of pink elf roses and stephanotis enhanced their costumes.

The bride's four young sisters, Barbara, Dawn, Karen, and Pamela Ensley, as junior maids of honor, were a flutter of petal pink organza bouffant skirts over polished cotton, with short sleeves and cowl necklines; the finishing touch was petal pink head-pieces, and bouquets of pink carnations and elf roses.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Fred L. Knipp, of Ypsilanti, Michigan, and the late Colonel Knipp, chose as his best man, Captain John Clatworthy (USMC). Ushers were Lieutenant Herbert Hoppe (USN), and Lieutenant Warren Gay (USN).

The bride's mother, Mrs. Thayer, in a gown of beige lace over aqua satin, with a corsage of white orchids, welcomed friends to the champagne reception at her Carmel home.

Mrs. William Ensley presided over the cutting of the wedding cake, done with the traditional sword. Master Thomas Star Thayer, young brother of the bride, attended the guest book.

Honors for Stan

Last week marked a proud time for Stan Gray, a student at Wasatch Academy in Mt. Pleasant, Utah, and for his parents, Dr. and Mrs. K. Fillmore Gray, of Carmel. First, with Jill Bowman of San Francisco in Ionesco's one-act play, "The Lesson," he won the Utah State High School Drama Festival award, and the Harper and Row trophy. This followed upon his winning, also with Jill, a regional contest, including individual acting honors, in competition with 16 schools.

Second, Stan has been elected next year's student body president at Wasatch. He has just completed serving as editor of the school year book, and will be a senior next year.

This isn't all. During the same week, he won an award of merit for sculpture in a state competition for high school students, having previously won a cash award for sculpture in a creative arts festival at his own school.

Stan was graduated from Sunset School in 1960, and has an older brother, Stephen, also a Sunset and Wasatch Academy graduate, now completing his second year in the school of pharmacy at the University of the Pacific.

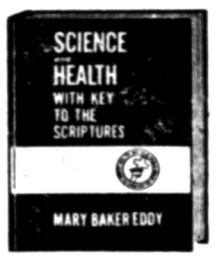
EVERY ONE WHO WOULD KNOW GOD



needs this book

In these troublesome days thinking men and women recognize that it is only through a knowledge of God that they can find peace and a sense of stability.

Through the study of Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy many thousands have found that God is knowable; that He is unchanging divine Love—the protector and governor of His perfect creation.

Science and Health may be read or examined, together with the Bible, at any Christian Science Reading Room. Or it may be purchased at $3.

Where There's Life . . .

By Andre Hope

I don't know that the title of this whatever-it-is needs explaining, except to say that it is not entirely just a bad pun. I've always felt that where there is life there are people, and where there is life and people that's where I want to be—except sometimes.

We are about to come into a three- or four-months period of "Sometimes." We separate the seasons, thusly: fall-winter (holidays), spring (fertilizer, pest control, uncontrolled sneezing fits), and summer visitors (sometimes). Each year we make out a rather ample list of guests we would like to have and a rather more prodigious list of those we wouldn't. This list is rather difficult, as we are prone to forget the names (and hopefully) the faces and characteristics of those we wouldn't like to have. During the seven years we have happily abided here I have collected a rather nice dossier of recipies for dealing with the "uninvited." May I share them with you?

Let's call this a course in Three Downsmanship and 4 (months) to go. The drop-in guests will usually neither write nor call. They appear on the doorstep, making it clear that they are welcome with the "Well, here we are!" approach.

There they are, all right. But who asked 'em? You are reasonably sure you didn't even in one of your more opulent moods.

The Treatment

1. You keep two empty suitcases and appropriate coats and hats in the closet. When you see the drop-ins advancing, adorn and burden yourself with this accoutrement and burst through the door. "Oh, how nice to see you! What a pity we can't get together! We're just leaving on OUR vacation." Stay away from home 'til bed-time, which ensures not having to turn on the lights until the next day.

2. Answer the clarion cry of the door-bell, aflutter with kleenex, audibly sneezing and coughing. "It's so good to see you! We've both been down with the Asiatic flu and nobody's come near us in days!"

3. If they call, you have it made. "Isn't it marvelous you could vacation on our beautiful Peninsula! Luckily, we know of the perfect motel for you and they still have a vacancy. If you hurry! Do save time to drop by for a cocktail with us, 'bye now!"

Or . . . "Isn't this a happy coincidence. We're right in the midst of painting the house (redoing the garden, having a picnic for fifty of the children of the 'Muscle Nut's Junior Corps'), (hauling loads of rock from Big Sur) and we were just wondering where we could find willing hands."

Or . . . "Come right over. Knowing our chilly, foggy weather this time of the year I hope you remember plenty of coats and sweaters." Following this, turn off all the heat, open the windows and start every hose and sprinkler around the castle. By the time they arrive, things should be fairly clammy, and impossibly uncomfortable.

4. If all else fails, use the "OUR vacation" ploy and allow them the use of the house "even though we don't usually lend it, since Uncle Charlie, after a nip or two, set it on fire." Tell them that a friend usually drops by to feed the dogs, but they may as well do it. Remind them that one of the dogs growls and snarls quite a bit, which sometimes doesn't mean a thing! And, as regards Uncle Charlie, don't let him in, no matter what! Even if they have to call the police!

Now, you're all ready to settle down and enjoy a pestless summer except, as I say, this IS the "sometimes" season.

"Elijah"

An unusual performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" will be heard on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Church of the Wayfarer, when a costumed, semi-dramatic version will be presented by the Stockton Chorale, under the direction of Dr. Arthur J. Holton.

This musical group, now in its 12th year under Dr. Holton's direction, is part of an auditioned group of 130 adult singers from nine communities in the Stockton area, who have presented in previous years Verdi's "Requiem," Berlioz's "Requiem," Gabrieli's "Jubilate Deo," and Verdi's "Aida" and "Te Deum."

The Stockton Chorale recently performed Bethoven's "Missa Solemnis" with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra at the War Memorial Opera House in San Francisco.

Dr. Holton is chairman of the Division of Arts and Letters at Stockton College, directs the Stockton College Chorus and A Cappella Choir, and has directed the chorale in two other appearances in Carmel. Inez Pope will be at the pipe organ on Sunday evening.

The public is invited to attend this performance of "Elijah."

SEEKING SERENITY IN THIS TROUBLED WORLD?

Then lift up your eyes to the peaceful Santa Lucias from every window of one of our favorite listings. We sold the present owners this 3 bedroom home for its restful view when it was new, and now, two years later, their business takes them back to San Francisco, and their charming secluded home is available to offer serentity and peace to another family. Quietly carpeted, shuttered and draped, this home offers everything in terms of convenient, modern appliances and facilities, and there is also a large, gracious dining room so hard to find in the newer homes. The price is $37,500, and we'd love to show it to you while the owners are away this week.

HITCHCOCK-TYPE BIRDS

Are not attracted to this patio — it's too sweet and pretty for weirdies like thoose birds — but it does attract every songbird in town. There's also a house, turquoise and pretty and beautifully appointed, with 2 bedrooms, 2 baths, central heat, carpeting, heavy shake roof — everything you want in a house near the village, and it's only $27,500. We think it's the best buy in town, especially as we can make excellent terms to the buyer. Call right away for your turn to see it.

Thank You, Monterey County

To the thousands of volunteers — those who made possible the biggest and most effective community effort ever staged in Monterey County during the three "KO Polio" Sundays. Final figures reveal that over 389,000 people were immunized with all three types of vaccine.

The final results far exceeded any original expectations. These results also provided Monterey County with one of the highest population percentages immunized in the State of California.

It would be impossible to list every person or organization who provided an all-important assist. In addition to the volunteers, it's with special thanks we salute the invaluable support afforded "KO Polio" by our county-wide newspapers, billboards, radio and television stations.

Through this unprecedented effort, our goal of eradicating Polio in Monterey County has been met. You were a great team! Thank you, Monterey County!
